SOLLI CONCEPTS INTRODUCES A RANGE OF PREMIUM WOODEN BASINS

Debunking most of the myth associated with wood and its tendency with water, Solli Concepts has recently introduced an entire range of luxury wooden basins. Surprisingly, wooden sinks from the early days of sinks and baths were made from natural wood with no additional finishing. We want to take this tradition and infuse it into our modern day living, thereby not just bringing to you an indulgence in luxury but reviving an age-old lost lifestyle.

Teak is primarily used because of its natural waterproofing properties – it has been used for hundreds of years in the marine industry for this reason. The line is curated using traditional joinery techniques thus eliminating the use of any nails or screws. This method of construction ensures that the joints are extremely strong and it allows for some natural movement through seasonal changes and temperatures without compromising the product usage and functionality. A drop of wood; the most innovative product range from Solli Concepts has been built to challenge conventional thinking when it comes to furniture and fittings for wet areas.
